2.3 Education Implementation

2.3.1 Academic Activity Cycle

Academic activities are a series of student learning activities from the time they are accepted into the Master of Management Study Program until they graduate.

2.3.2 Semester Credit System (SKS)

Education is held based on the Semester Credit System (SKS). In this Semester Credit System, the weight of each educational activity is assessed with credits which are determined based on the study load that must be carried out by students, the workload of lecturers and program implementation based on a unit of time called semester.

Educational activities take place in stages called semesters which consist of 14 weeks of lectures and 2 weeks of exams (Middle Semester and Final Exams) = a total of 16 weeks. The implementation of education in one semester consists of lecture activities, seminars, guest lectures, company work, in the form of face-to-face, as well as structured and independent academic activities.

For students, the load of one credit (semester credit system) is equivalent to:

- 50 minutes/week face-to-face with lecturers in scheduled lectures.
- 50 minutes/week structured activities (eg tutorials, task completion).
- 50 minutes/week of independent academic activities to explore, prepare and/or complete other academic tasks, for example in the form of reading reference books.

2.3.3 Lecture Activities

The learning system applied by the Undip Master of Management Study Program tries to make theory and practice run parallel. Lecture material is delivered through cases and projects (case & project based approach). Therefore, lectures are not only face-to-face in the classroom. Case exercises, surveys and company visits, as well as presentations are included in lecture activities aimed at sharpening students' sensitivity to real business problems. There are even some courses that make exhibitions to present the ideas and creativity of students. Lecture materials are not only delivered by Undip lecturers, but also practitioners who act as guest lecturers (guest lectures).

The Process of Closeness to the World of Practice

In addition to conventional methods such as lectures, class discussions, and case discussions, to increase insight into the implementation of concepts in the business world, various other methods of teaching courses are given, namely:

1. Survey to Company

Survey to the company is carried out by student groups independently. This survey aims to analyze the relationship between business practices and business concepts/theories that have been obtained, and what difficulties are experienced by the company in applying these concepts.

As a result of their writing, students are also required to provide recommendations if deemed necessary. In general, the results of the analysis are seminarized in class and open to discussion and questions and answers between students and faculty members. If requested, a copy of the results of the analysis can be provided to the company concerned.

2. Company Visit

The visit to the company will be guided by a lecturer. The results of this visit are written in the form of a report and must be presented in class and open to discussion and question and answer between students and lecturers. The results of the analysis will be given a copy to the company concerned if necessary. Students will also provide recommendations if deemed necessary.

3. Inviting business practitioners as guest speakers

Another way that is proposed to be done in an effort to improve students' ability to apply concepts to business is to invite business practitioners who are experts in their fields as guest speakers. In this session, students are given the opportunity to discuss and ask questions so as to enrich their business insight.

2.3.4 Class Rules

1. The implementation of the teaching and learning process is carried out with the following provisions:
